Other appointments at the annual meeting will be by a show of hands.

- b When a new councillor(s) is to be co-opted, an application form will be used and if possible the process will involve an opportunity for councillors to have an informal discussion with applicants.

In the event that more councillors wish to be co-opted than there are vacancies, councillors will be asked to indicate their preferred candidates in a secret ballot. Councillors will have a number of votes equal to the number of vacancies on the council. After the first round of voting, the leading candidates are identified, equal in number to the number of vacancies. Where the leading candidates can be identified, and they have a majority of the votes, the leading candidates are duly co-opted.

Where the leading candidates cannot be identified due to a tie, or the leading candidates do not each have an absolute majority of votes in their favour, the person having the least number of votes shall be eliminated. Where there is a tie between two or more candidates for the lowest number of votes, the candidates with the lowest number of votes will draw lots to select which one will be eliminated, unless they have no votes, in which case all of the candidates with no votes shall be eliminated. Councillors will again be asked to indicate their preferred candidates. Again, councillors will have a number of votes equal to the number of vacancies on the council.

This process is repeated until either the number of candidates equals the number of vacancies, or the leading candidates can be identified and each have a majority of votes, whichever happens first.

In the event that after the elimination of all other candidates there is a tie for the leading candidates to be co-opted, any tie must be settled by the mayor's casting vote.
